Why Everyone Got Trump's Tariffs Wrong

Predictions of the duties' impact on the economy were buoyant or dire. Here's the reality.

In the days following "Liberation Day," the contrast between Trump's optimism and more dire predictions from trade experts and economists was stark.

As businesses and consumers tried to make sense of the mixed messages, the president doubled down on promises he'd made during his 2024 presidential campaign. "The markets are going to boom, the stock [market] is going to boom, the country is going to boom," he said on April 3.

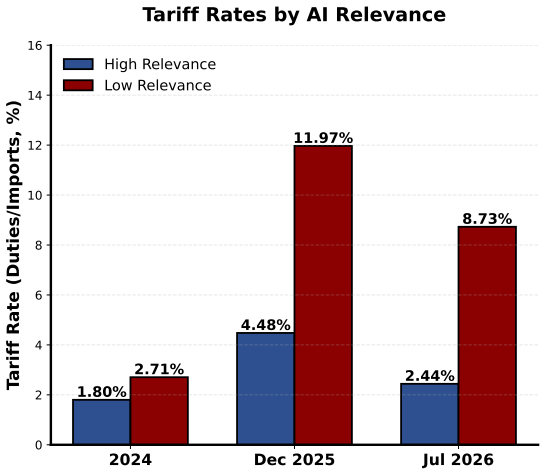

Economists and business leaders dialed up predictions of a fallout. BlackRock's Larry Fink said "most CEOs I talk to would say we are probably in a recession right now." JPMorgan Chase said a global recession was even likely.

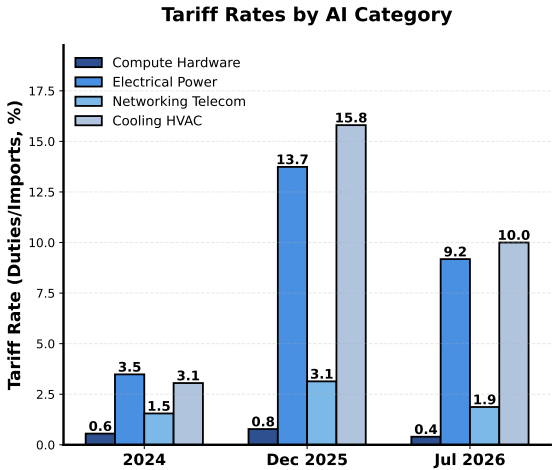

An economic collapse hasn't materialized. Neither has an economic revival.
